

From the Co-Directors . . .

Greetings WCHS Members—

As fall arrives we turn our attention to the awesome beauty the season brings. We've had exceptional weather to celebrate nature at its best.

WHAT'S A TAG-ALONG TOUR? Taking advantage of a beautiful fall morning, a few lucky participants accompanied me (Joan) on our first Tag-Along Tour offered online to members. The tour began at Jonny Beans located in the basement of the Miller-Armstrong building. With coffee in hand we consolidated vehicles and headed west. Our first stop was the Minske/Ristau Cemetery. This pioneer cemetery is easy to miss heading north on Co. Rd. 52. It sits high on a hillside and is the final resting place for early residents of Iosco Township. The second stop was the Schuch Farm. With permission from the landowners, we walked the site where the event took place, which many remember as Waseca's worst unsolved crime. From there we stopped at the Ebenezer Evangelical or Bathke Cemetery. Heading north on Reeds Lake Road, we arrived at St. Jarlath's Church. We were met by Mark Haley who opened the doors to this beautiful church. Although no longer in use, the cemetery and church are kept in good condition. Truly a jewel and deserves appreciation for the neighbors who volunteer to protect the landmark from harm. Our last stop was the Charlie Hoffman farm. Charlie passed away in January of this year at 101 years of age. The family had gathered for a sale that day. We enjoyed meeting the family and touring the site. As we stood in the Honey House we were struck by the historical significance of the life of Charlie Hoffman and his family. Known for his bee-keeping techniques and honey resulting from special Alsike clover grown specifically for the bees, his life is wonderfully chronicled in a book written by his son Larry, called simply "My Life". I'll be exploring again in the spring. Members will be notified with an online invitation to Tag-Along as we explore Waseca County history.

Dr. Wes Rethwill gets an Oliver Hardy mustache and hat to pose in with Tribute Committee member, Audra Boyer.

What was your favorite celebration? Was it the first exhibit, the 1940s dance last year, the movie nights? Let us know. Next year will be the fifth annual, but we feel there should be a larger community-wide planning committee and also input about how often the Leroy Shield Hometown Tribute should occur. Contact Sheila Morris, 507-835-7700.

LEROY SHIELD TRIBUTE 2010:

This year's Leroy Shield Hometown Tribute on October 8 welcomed 120 movie-goers of Laurel & Hardy's "Our Relations" and several Our Gang/Little Rascals short films. Of course they all included music by Leroy Shield! A surprise outside CIS Auditorium was the Ralph Schultz of Belle Plaine playing Leroy Shield's familiar music on the Band Organ (calliope). We want to commemorate his birthday, October 2, 1893 every year, but in different ways.

WCHS ANNUAL MEETING: Our Annual Meeting held in Waldorf at the Community Center served and entertained 45 WCHS members. Everyone had a very good, social time entertained by Shirley & Alvin Groskreutz. Waldorf historical arti-

Preservation Efforts in Waseca County

New plans at the Ward house on East Elm . . .

The Waseca Heritage Preservation Commission “cut it’s teeth” recently when the new owners of the Percy Ward house applied for a permit to add a second structure to the property. We have all passed by this magnificent home many times. It will be hard to see the landscape change from the original state. There was a carriage house at one time. It was moved to SW Waseca and converted to apartments.

At a recent preservation workshop we learned some things we didn’t know. Additions are put on National Register properties all the time. Elements from the original structure must be repeated and applied to the new, however mimicking the original too closely is not permitted. The addition must be different from the original portion of the building.

The Waseca Heritage Preservation Commission (HPC) is fortunate to have worked with Thomas Zahn and Bethany Gladhill. The team has provided the Historic Context Study for the City of Waseca and is currently working with the HPC on the Trowbridge Band Shell Project. They also happened to be at our last meeting when the new owner presented preliminary drawings of the addition. As a new commission, we hadn’t had an opportunity to work on any property let alone one of our most recognizable historic houses in Waseca!

With guidance from Zahn and Gladhill and the State Historic Preservation Architect Natasha Weiner we were able to work with the new owners to make changes that comply with National Register standards.

Many thanks to HPC Chair and Councilman Les Tlougan and Ranae Schult staff coordinator, for making this possible.

HOLIDAY EXHIBIT & OPEN HOUSE:

The cooler temperatures and shorter days remind us of what lies ahead. Staff has begun preparation for the holiday exhibit, Under the Christmas Tree—Very Special Toy Collections. In preparation for the holiday exhibit we have asked members to share their precious toy collections, many were Christmas gifts during childhoods many years ago. The exhibit will feature stories of meaning and great fun with toys that may or may not have cost much money, but provided so much joy to their recipients. A few dollhouses this year, but also dolls, trains, trucks, and action figures. The whole family will enjoy this show! Some of our members sharing are Jim and Edy Barber, Louie and Norma Marzinske, Lois Chaffin, Jim Fox, Deanna Bendix and daughter, Katie Youngberg, Roman Koenigs, Ole Lundquist, Anita Hildebrandt, Doris Berger, Justine and Mark Meyers, and the show is still expanding. Volunteer bakers are needed to make cookies and bars, call 835-7700. Open House is Saturday & Sunday, December 4 & 5, 11 am to 7 pm.

We'll serve those cookies and cider, Christmas music, lights, wonderful images. (Make it an extra stop as you tour the Sights & Sounds of Christmas House Walk on the same weekend.)

Our exhibit is free, but $2 donations will be very much appreciated.

It's about home: A former Waseca County resident who had been on our website wrote, "Great website, it was like visiting home." From our researching visitors, we get comments like, "I found my lost relatives here!" or "I didn't know I had so many Waseca County connections." When a first time visitor walks into the museum, they look up and see our dome. Often they say, "This is great, I've lived here all my life and this is the first time I've seen this museum." The common theme here is in the word home and learning about home.

WCHS works to save the history of Waseca County for all time. This is only accomplished with a limited budget, part-time staff and volunteers. Operational funding is requested to the local government to try to provide some financial stability, so that fundraising, membership drives, and grant requests can happen effectively.

The work of WCHS: Behind the scenes, staff and volunteers are constantly processing information, new artifacts, family histories, oral histories, photographs, archival documents—it all must be processed. Each item must have a number assigned, description written and a record created. Photographs must be scanned, artifacts must be photographed, and everything must be archivally stored. To create an exhibit or an event, research is initiated, information gathered, photographs printed, labels written and printed, promotion planned and executed, volunteers organized, and so on. In 2011 the Waseca County Timeline should be finished as a semi-permanent, year-round exhibit. The research phase will begin on a Herter's exhibit.

Our website, www.historical.waseca.mn.us averages over 2,000 hits per day. To date there are over 37,000 artifact records, 15,000 photographs, 300,000+ archived records. This narrative is from our www.giveMN.org presence. It gives you stats and support ds, family and business folders, family histories, probates, birth, death, marriage, baptism, cemetery records—all constantly being indexed and updated for website access. Our Bailey-Lewer Research Library has three microfilm reader/printers, newspaper microfilm from all Waseca County newspapers, maps, yearbooks, atlases, and still more.

Over 600 members support WCHS annually from all over the county, the state, across the U.S. and three foreign countries. Membership provides access to the website records and free research in the library.

The Waseca County Historical Society is a member of the Minnesota Historical Society, the American Association of State & Local History, the Minnesota Council of Non-profits, and the American Association of Museums. WCHS is one of only two non-church research sites of the LDS Church in Minnesota!

Tremendous strides have been made by generous donors from the Waseca County community in the past. The Waseca County Historical Society was organized in 1938. The present museum building was a gift from the Edgar Johnson family in 1964. Our genealogical research library is housed in the 1868 house that was once owned by P.C. Bailey and Ewald Lewer. In 2007 the board of directors initiated the first-ever capital fundraising campaign to celebrate Waseca County's 150th anniversary, and raised $150,000 in three years. Since 1988 WCHS has benefited from endowment funds held by the Waseca Area Foundation which is part of the Minnesota Community Foundation. To date WCHS has seven funds. These funds provide annual interest income: Phil Allen Memorial Fund, the Frank and Barbara Goodspeed Memorial Fund, the Edgar F. and Ethel Johnson Fund, the Wes and Carol Rethwill History Fund, the Jerry and Linda Rutledge Heritage Fund, the WCHS Endowment Fund, and the WCHS Lifetime Endowment Fund. And in 2008, Jerry and Linda Rutledge also created a generous charitable remainder trust to benefit WCHS in the future.

Please consider being part of the Waseca County Historical Society support family. Be part of the success it has had. Be part of the success in its future. We want to continue to educate and interpret for the next generation--to continue to collect the stories and artifacts, and to continue to make it all accessible for generations to come.

Waseca County Cemeteries

By Joanne Hintz

To call Joanne Hintz a cemetery enthusiast is an understatement. Joanne has documented almost if not every cemetery in Waseca County. Joanne recently donated her book of photos and directions to cemeteries many have never heard of. The color photographs are beautiful. Joanne has taken multiple images from each cemetery, as well as listed the township, range, section, latitude and longitude for each cemetery. Those of you with GPS devices can cruise the county without suffering the frustration of getting lost finding these hidden resting places. Also included is a map for those of us lagging in technological apparatus. The book is also on a DVD. Joanne’s book can be viewed at the Bailey Research Library. Many thanks Joanne!

Projects & Needs:

We would like to have an up-to-date wireless, portable microphone system to use at Chautauqua this summer, and other WCHS programs and events. We have relied on rentals, and borrows. Donations welcome. A new system will cost approximately $1,300.

The Waldorf Café Jukebox has not been working for sometime. We need someone with electronics know-how to help get it playing those 1950s, 1960s 45s again. Who knows what a 45 is? It would be great to have it playing Brenda Lee’s “Rockin’ Around the Christmas Tree” at the December 4 & 5 Open House here!

Membership Renewal Date

Membership will be extremely important in 2011

With support for WCHS Operations shrinking from the City of Waseca, your support through membership, donations and volunteerism will be needed. Staff size and hours have been frozen for the last two years. No raises in sight.

Everything else we have done is “cut to the bone”. The only way to keep the museum viable is controlling staff hours, slowing all that we do and accessibility for you. The rest of the budget maintains the buildings that house the entire WCHS collections of artifacts, archives, papers, photographs, microfilm books, computers, readers, etc. We are however, very grateful to PLRAC and the E.F. Johnson Foundation for grants for our annual Chautauqua at Maplewood Park.

In 2011 the Spring Luncheons will be offered again maintaining the same ticket prices; and the Annual Ice Harvest, where we will ask for $2 donations. We are happy to answer any questions you may have about how WCHS is funded. We do not get funding from the Minnesota State Historical Society. We pay them a membership fee. We do not get operational funding from the Legacy Amendment. That is reserved for NEW programming and some capital projects. We do intend to request funding for a lift and mainfloor bathroom for the museum in 2011. That does not help with Operations. The Board of Directors will be planning a major fundraiser in 2011, we hope that you will support it!

Protecting Family Memories

By Genealogy.com

Our last Wags Rag insert talked about causes of deterioration of your family photographs. The following information will share with you Properly Store your Photographs.

Proper Storage Methods and Material

Using specialized storage methods and materials will help prolong the life of your family photographs. Since prints and negatives can stick together, it is best to store them in separate envelopes or plastic sleeves. When storing mounted prints, be sure to place a sheet of paper or plastic between them. Within these enclosures, your prints and negatives can be stored in acid-free storage boxes on a shelf or in steel file cabinets.

Photo albums are convenient and popular ways to store (and share) your memories. When choosing your album, make sure the album pages are acid free. When shopping for albums, be sure the album is "archival" and that "PVC" was used in the manufacturing process.

Finally, consider making copies of your family photos or storing them electronically. You can do this by scanning photos or by taking negatives to a photo processor and having them put them in electronic format for you.

As you can see, there are several relatively simple things you can do to help your photographs last longer. By carefully choosing the mounting materials, storage materials, and storage location for your photographs, you can preserve memories for generations to enjoy.

Be sure to check out the gift shop at the Historical Society as they have a number of storage containers, photo sleeves etc. for you to help protect your precious photos.

Gathering Family Memories

By Maureen Taylor, reprinted from Genealogy.com

By following a few easy steps you can collect family memories at holidays and family reunions. Unfortunately, too many of us think that the right opportunity should be planned. However, if you try to wait for the perfect moment it may never happen. If you tarry too long, busy schedules and sudden illness can interfere. Instead, be prepared for those unexpected opportunities to collect your family history and traditions. A little preplanning can help you gather family history where and when it happens. The best way to start is to create a family history kit that you can carry with you or keep in your car when you visit with relatives. The following equipment can be held in a small storage container and will fit in even a small suitcase.

Family History Gathering Kit

- Pencils, notebook
- Pedigree charts
- Copies of an assortment of family photographs
- Camera with film
- Tape recorder

The contents of your kit can vary based on the materials you have on hand, as long as you have the essential tools to document your family history. For instance, pencils and a notebook are mainstays of genealogical research, but more computer-savvy individuals can use a handheld computer device to record information. The pedigree charts and photographs act as prompts when you are trying to encourage a reluctant relative to share their memories, and keeping a camera and a tape recorder handy helps preserve the details of the visit. Camcorders can be used, but it is usually not practical to carry one with you everywhere, while the new digital recorders that double as a still camera are nice, but expensive. Now that you have the basic materials ready, follow these few steps to gather your family heritage in small, manageable pieces without becoming overwhelmed by the task

Write Down What You Know

The first step in any family history project is to record on a pedigree chart or family group sheet what you already know, including full names (maiden names), dates and places for births, marriages, and deaths. This outline of your known family history is a vital part of your collecting plan for the future. It provides you with a starting place.
